A Southern Refrain.

As once I walked by a dismal swamp There sat an Old Cove in the dark and damp, And at everybody as passed that road, A stick or a stone this Old Cove would throw.
And whenever he flung his stick or his stone He'd set up a song of "Let me alone!"
Let me alone, for I love to sky These bits of things at the passers-by;
Let me alone, for I've got your tin, And lots of other traps snugly in;
Let me alone! I'm rigging a boat To grab whatever you've got afloat; In a week or so I expect to come To turn you out of your "ouse and ume; I'm a quiet Old Cove," he says, with a groan;
"All I axes is, Let me alone!"

"T was in Arabia's sunny land He wooed his bonny bride;
His amber Ella, rain or shine, Was ever by his side.

But now he does not care for her;
No love tale does he tell her;
He'd join Bedouin something else.
Alas! poor Arab-Ella.

INWARD CHEER AND ORATORICAL GUSH—SPARKING CHAMPAGNE AND MU-TUAL TICKLING—OUR J. D. KEN-NEDY HERO OF THE DAY—PER-SONALS.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10, 1880.)

My DEAR LI—
The holiday season has come and gone, fulfilling its promises of jollity, though to attribute gayety would decidedly overstate the case.
Most of our visitors have returned to their homes, and the home people to their avocations.

The doors of the Harlan mansion were again thrown open last evening and the house placed at the disposal of several gentlemen who wished to do honor to some of our visitors. At half past nine the guests and hosts sat down to a supper that would have tempted the most ascetic.

The guests were Gov. P. B. S.
Pinchback and Mr. J. D. Kennedy of Louisiana, Col. Harlan of Ohio, and his son Robert Harlan, (at whose residence the symposium was held), Dr. B. A. Bozeman of Charleston, S. C., and Jas. T. Bradford, Esq., of Baltimore. The hosts, Messrs. Wm. E. Matthews, C. A.
Fleetwood, Wyatt Archer, J. M.
Hawkesworth and Daniel Murray, residing in Washington.

After the quickened consciences of the inner man had been laid to rest under the good things, terrapin, croquets and peas, etc., etc, the champagne had quickened the tongues of the party and stimulated the flow of ideas and language "most uncommon."

W. E. Matthews, who presided, started the ball in one of his felicitous speeches, making graceful allusions to the distinguished guests in the order as they sat, and humorous allusion to the battle-fields upon which Col. Harlan won his rank, and after expressing the pleasure which it afforded himself and his colleagues to tender their hospitalities to the assembled guests, gave the health of Gov.
P. B. S. Pinchback, which was "drunk standing." The Governor replied in a speech full of fire, reviewing graphically his political experiences since he came knocking at the door of the U. S. Senate, concluding with the opinion that the great drawback to the advancement of the Negro in this country was his lack of self-assertion.

Doctor Bozeman followed in a sound speech of some minutes, agreeing with the previous speaker, but supplementing his opinion of the need of self-assertion with the idea that he also needed self-respect. Mr. Bradford of Baltimore, the next speaker, turned his back upon politics as not in his line, but made a few brief and happy remarks upon the occasion, the surroundings, and the guests assembled.

J. Duncan Kennedy, the next speaker, and the youngest man present, made concededly the best speech of the evening. His manner was quiet but earnest, his language well chosen, and his ideas as expressed, proved that he at least of the young men had given the present condition and future prospects of his people his earnest thought, and evolved therefrom ideas that trod at least within the borders of statesmanship. He was frequently compelled to pause for the hearty applause, which broke in upon his thrilling words.

Colonel Harlan took occasion while on his feet to brush away the imputations cast upon his military record by the chairman, by giving a history of the services of his battalion in the Cincinnati riots, closing with some well chosen expressions of pleasure enjoyed on the then occasion.

Mr. Robert Harlan pushed Governor Pinchback in to take his place, in response to his health, which the Governor did in his usual ready manner.

Having exhausted the guests, the hosts came next, their remarks principally tending toward their birthplaces and to the laudation of their distinguished guests. Mr.
Archer dwelt upon Virginia, and paid a fine tribute to Gov. Pinch-back; Mr. Murray was eloquent upon Maryland and the future of the Negro; Mr. Hawkesworth laudatory of the islands of the sea, as exemplars for the young men of this country as regards the positions held in the commercial world by young men there.

Mr. Fleetwood, holding the foot of the table, beside being no speaker, found the ground pretty exhaustively gone over before he put his foot on it, which gave him a valid excuse to plead inability when his turn came. In a few brief words he expressed his pleasure at participating in the pleasures of the evening, his earnest wish that similar occasions might frequently offer in the future, and thanking the chairman for complimentary allusions and expressions in introducing his health, (which was also "drunk standing"), subsided.

The lateness of the hour prevented the chairman from being called upon to respond in his own behalf, which was doubtless a mercy to him, as besides his opening speech he had a word of commendation for each speaker as he sat down, and always something new to introduce the next speaker.

The circle was a very appreciative one, generous in applause of each happy expression and earnest word.
The occasion will be marked by a white stone in the memory of each person present.

J. D. Kennedy has received a perfect ovation from his many friends in this city since his return.
Although a native Louisianian, he has passed so much of his later years in this city that he is looked upon as one of us, and we take the same interest and pride in his success as is felt by those among whom he was born. We were proud of the compliment tendered him by the late nomination and are proud of his record in the campaign. His defeat was more honorable than the victory of his opponent. "Better luck next time."

The annual installation of officers of the Sparta Club took place at the club rooms last evening.
J. Harry Smith, Esq., succeeding C. A. Fleetwood as president, Robt. Craig succeeding J. D. Kennedy as vice president, J. C. Nalle succeeding J. H. Smith as treasurer, and the old reliable T. Lawson Brooks succeeding himself as secretary, and Sternmonte Lewis chairman executive committee.

The outgoing president, in his remarks, briefly reviewed the struggles and trials through which the organization had gone in the year just passed, gave a word or two of counsel from his experience, as to the future course of the members, paid a high but just tribute to the incoming presiding officer, and turned over the gavel with wishes for the continued prosperity and success of the organization.

The speech of Mr. Smith, in assuming the chair, was characteristic of the man, plain, sound, practical, sensible and earnest. He also spoke of the experiences of the past year, paying high tribute to the ex-president, the secretary and the faithful few who had stood shoulder to shoulder through the war of opposition and fought their way through to victory. Counselative, shall have been installed to reign for four years, and dictate to the voters their mode of regulating the body politic, and counting in according to their respective Southern ideas.

The Supreme Court of Maine having decided unanimously that the governor and council have no right to "go behind its returns," we believe, however, like the Burlington Hawkeys, that the governor has some rights which the court is bound to respect, including the right to go behind the barn and kick himself vigorously.

Chicago claims and perhaps is undisputed as being the leading hog market of the Northwest, but she has been considerably troubled with "strikes" by the packers, who have organized a union of their own, regardless of their employers' interests. Most of the men are Irish, but a large portion of those at work (non-union) are Germans.

From present indications, Americans and Germans will supercede the Irish in the business of slaughtering. Every day cases of bulldozing the non-union men are reported, but the police have thus far prevented any very serious breach of the peace.

On Tuesday there was a convention held at Springfield composed of all the military officers of the State National Guard for the discussion of the proposed organization of a national militia to be under the orders of the president of the United States, and to have a uniform discipline of all national guards. Major S. W. Scott, of the sixteenth battalion, (colored) was in attendance, and he assured us that Illinois will do her best to have such a bill pass.

About a month ago we were startled at the sudden disappearance of Talbot Curd, a young colored man, who was at the time mentioned, city carrier for the Inter-Ocean, in a southwest section of the city, and known as Bridgeport, where the Irish element are greatly in the majority, and it was then surmised that he had been foully dealt with, and a reward was offered both for the finding of his body and the arrest of the de-predators, but up to yesterday nothing had been seen or heard of him, and to-day we were again startled by the announcement in all the morning dailies that his body had been found. He was a student in the Chicago University, and we give you the extract of this morning's Inter-Ocean concerning his horrible death:

"Beside a sluggish stream, called a canal, the filth in which had made its water of the consistency of molasses, was a fragment of board supporting what remained of the carrier. Thirty-two days and nights at the bed of that filthy pond had swollen and bloated the remains almost beyond recognition, but the clothes were there, and his watch-chain hung across his vest as it used; his overshoes were on over his boots, and his carrier's strap, with a swivel attached, on which to hook his bundle of papers, hung from his right shoulder to the left side. The coroner having viewed the remains, they were placed in cart and taken to the Morgue. Here the keeper of the institution searched the body, with the following result: Clothes found all buttoned up, coat buttoned tightly over chest; in inside right-hand pocket of coat, carrier's route book; left-hand outside pocket, white handkerchief and copy of the Inter-Ocean of December 6, folded up; in left-hand pants pocket, $1 in silver and nickels. No fracture of skull, and no appearance of injuries of any kind.

"Regarding the time indicated by watch, and the money, after the missing man's route had been canvassed, it was estimated he had collected $1.20, and from the last place he was seen, 6:35 o'clock a.
m. was fixed as the time he had disappeared."

And all plainly indicates that he had missed his foothold and fallen in, and no one near to save him.

It is said that several have lost their lives in this man-trap, and no doubt suits will be brought against the responsible parties.

Talbot Curd leaves a mother and sister to mourn his untimely death.

Hon. R. A. Dawson, of Little Rock, Ark., and A. S. Hall, Jr., of Kansas, were with us on New Year's day, and the latter gentleman gave an eloquent discourse on "Kansas and its Future for the Colored Race." Excuse brevity. More anon. WESLEY.

A Great Sultan.

AN AFRICAN POTENTATE WHO GETS DRUNK WITH HIS PARLIAMENT EVERY DAY.

[From the Pall Mall Gazette.] The Comte de Semeille, who has recently returned from the banks of the Niger, whither he was sent when Marshal McMahon was president of the French Republic, has just published a few more chapters of his startling narrative. The Count says that on reaching Lokodoga he offered the Sultan of that place some cotton goods, whereon his majesty shouted: "I am a great Sultan, and not a dog! I don't want your presents; give me gin and rum!" The Count thought he was going to be assassinated, but he forced his interpreter to say he was not English, but French; that he had never been received before by such a dog; that he feared neither fire nor poison, etc.
This language having sobered the Sultan, the Count gave him a bottle of gin, which produced a fit of delirium tremens. The Count adds that the Sultan is completely drunk and that he has no authority over his subjects, who have imposed upon him parliament with which he gets drunk from morning till evening. At Onitebe the Count came across several English establishments, and he complains that our countrymen were rather jealous of him and ever more inclined to throw obstacles in his way than to help him on his road. Higher up the country, in the country of the Mitchis, the Count nearly saw his travels brought to an abrupt conclusion.
However, the King, after slaying before him one hundred human victims and examining their entails, declared them favorable and made the Count a present of twenty wives. The one hundred victims were cut up into small pieces, which were distributed throughout the city, and the Count, who dined with the Sultan in the evening, was obliged to eat a morsel and take a draught of human blood.
Fortunately, he was able to conclude his repast with fruit and palm wine. The Count writes glowingly of the natural wealth of the country, which evidently requires a good deal of opening up.

Speeches were made by Messrs.
Lewis, Brooks, Johnson of the Advocate, Harris, Savoy, Stewart, Nalle, and others, either in assumption of office or in response to toasts offered at the conclusion of the banquet prepared by the officers elect.

In response to "The Future of the Sparta Club," Mr. Kennedy made a speech, which, as on the former occasion, was the gem of the evening. One little matter showing the affection and esteem in which Kennedy is held showed itself, in the fact that not one of the many who spoke took their seats without expressing to him individually their pleasure at his presence and commendation of his course.

The members and guests remained until a late hour in social enjoyment, before we dug their way to their several homes.

Dr. Bozeman left yesterday for Charleston. Miss Moffatt leaves to-day for New York. The witnesses from your State are expected to-night in the Kellogg case.

The neighborhood of Stewart's castle seems fated to prominence.
After the magnificent fire of the past week, in this week came a murder of a young man, so brutal that it is the topic of the entire city and District, particularly because no clue to the murderers has yet been obtained, though several parties have been arrested and are held under suspicion.

If there is anything too bad to say about the weather we have "enjoyed" before and since Christmas, with one or two charming exceptions, I am at a loss to imagine it.

Rev. Dr. Crummell was hastily called from the city by the serious illness of his remaining daughter; symptoms of insanity. He has the sympathy of the community in this affliction.

There are one or two other matters I would like to note, but this letter is over long now, and a day behind time, so I will close.

Yours tired. MARSA.

The price of whiskey has gone up a hundred per cent at Baton Rouge since the election. What fearful effect on a community a prospective change of Capital brings!

Stanley Matthews declared too late for Grant to capture the Ohio legislature. Mr. Matthews was a good Senator, but he must bide his time while in the solitude of private life.

Gen. Randall L. Gibson wants to be Senator. Did he work for Gov. Wiltz at Baton Rouge? If not the General Assembly is no bureau to put up the clothes of his ambition in.

The Ledger, a weekly journal of society and Republican politics, made its appearance, as per notice, on the 3d inst. In typography, matter and tone, it is all that can be reasonably expected.

The Fusionists are terribly confused by the military commander Garcelon left in charge. The fact is Gov. Garce—should not have taken Chamberlain as freely on his face as he did the returns.

Chicago seems destined to entertain the conventions of all the different national parties this year. A census of the place will be promulgated during each convention week, when St. Louis will then be declared a fourth rate city to the Metropolis of the West.

Rev. A. Grummell, D. D., of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Washington, the first of our colored clergy in America in scholarship and all the cultured graces which appertain to men of the holy cloth, is endeavoring to raise fifteen thousand dollars to complete his Metropolitan Church at the National Capital. The Episcopal Church of this country is too wealthy to suffer the Doctor's enterprise to lag for means.

Lieut. Gov. Wiltz has dropped the first part of the official handle and is now the Chief of Louisiana. We will say nothing for or against him. We leave him to time and his administration to approve or condemn him according as he acts. Judging him by the past, while at the head of the city government, we hope for much from him. But then, there's that grim democratic tiger at his back. Will he dare, in spite of that savage beast, to do the right? Let us silently pray and hope that he may.

Exit Nicholls.

His Excellency Francis T. Nicholls has doffed the executive robes and is now numbered in the surging crowd of the plain, untitled commons. Carried into power on the wave of a revolution in which fortune kicked the beam to his success, Gov. Nicholls had an extraordinary chance to win a great name, wipe out the bitter party rancor of many years, heal race prejudices and place his party on the high vantage ground of getting the esteem and confidence of all classes of people in Louisiana. As to how well he succeeded in one or all of these particulars, now that he is out of power, generosity would forbid us from speaking in too critical terms. Statesmanship, like any attribute exercised in any other department of human activity, must be judged by the force of surrounding circumstances. The best intentions of a public man, unless they chime in to an extent, with the views of the party he represents, are apt, like diamonds buried in the bowels of the earth, to remain treasured in his head and heart. Whatever difference of opinion there may be as to the ability of the late Chief Magistrate, all fair minded men must concede that he was disposed to be the governor of the whole people agreeably to the promise he made when nominated at Baton Rouge. But unfortunately for him, and for the welfare of the whole State his party was not educated up to his standard, and, as a consequence, his administration was not brilliant, and might even by the unkind be said to have been a failure. He neither won the confidence of his party in any appreciable degree nor assured our race that the fine promises and honeyed words which rung so often on his lips in the campaign of 1876 are the honest sentiments of the political organization he represented. All the honesty of purpose with which he entered into that memorable contest was his own property, and was accepted by the Democracy as a device to capture the government of the State. In other, and we trust happier days hence, when the maddening politics of race hatred against our race which has warped the judgment of the Democratic party will pass away and reason be called to govern its councils, a man like Francis T. Nicholls can then fill the executive chair and elicit the approbation of all. Take it for all in all, when we seriously consider the several proofs he gave of a desire to be just and impartial, but was thwarted at every turn from the source whence he should have looked for support, we are disposed to say that Gov. Nicholls wrought as well as he could with the materials at his command.

Gov. Wiltz's Message.

We have read with care the first annual message of Gov. Wiltz. Our limited columns will not permit us to enter into anything like a critical review of it. We shall therefore confine our observations to that portion of the message which directly concerns the interests of the colored race. On the measures which affect our welfare, Gov. Wiltz is apparently as fair and candid in his utterances as would be a Republican executive. Just to what extent he reflects the views of the party that elevated him to his exalted position time alone will inform us aright. Candid as Gov. Wiltz seems to be, some of his assertions are glaringly open to criticism. When, in speaking of the "Results of Honest Government," he declares "peace has been restored throughout the State, the jealousy of races has been allayed, confidence in home government has been restored, he discovers an ignorance of the actual condition of affairs in Louisiana which is as painful to the future of the State, as it is humiliating to the executive of a great State. The fact that elsewhere in the message Mr. Wiltz refers to the determined will of our race to leave their ancestral homes and brave the rigors of an inhospitable climate rather than longer remain here is, if nothing else, the best proof that there is something radically wrong which has driven us to such extremity. The easy, good-natured Negro would long before now have contented himself to live and die in this semi-tropical region, if the ruffianly cut-throats whom public sentiment is unable to frown down into nothingness have not systematically, since the inauguration of "home rule" made his very existence here a burden too grievous to be borne. We are satisfied that the better class of whites have always at heart deplored the wrongs which have driven us to desperation; but alas! they either have not the manliness to stamp lawlessness out of the State, or have trusted too much to the healing hand of time. We suggest that His Excellency address himself to an inflexible execution of the laws, especially in the case of the vagabonds who have made some parts of Louisiana a very hell for our people; let him see that every civil and political right is exercised with freedom, and thereby give our people in acts an honest and earnest determination of his government to wipe out the past, and we assure him, in time hence he will have no occasion to refer in an annual message race hatreds and their kindred woes. The kindly sentiments and suggestions for our people to be found in some parts of the message are commendable to Mr. Wiltz. We will watch his administration with something more than curious interest. We will treat his acts, not from the standpoint of a partisan, but with the impartiality which the common welfare of all classes demand.

A Legislative Outrage.

The two houses of the General Assembly under the new constitution began their sessions at noon on Monday last. The proceedings were not characterized by anything more than is common to such an occasion were it not for an extraordinary occurrence in the House. The member from Plaquemine, Mr. Mahoney, a colored man, was not sworn in on the allegation that the constitution rendered ineligible a person who, holding public moneys in trust, could not present a receipt of settlement and acquits for the same from the proper authorities. The day following, the member from Concordia, Mr. Young, also colored, was likewise objected to on the same ground. Mr. Young protested his quietus from his predecessor, a Democrat, in proof of his right to be seated, if indeed such a showing was a prima facie necessity to assume the post of duty to which he had been elected by his constituents. All this for the time being was of no avail. Such a proceeding was as unwarranted, and outrageous as it was grossly abusive of the spirit of that fundamental maxim in legislation which holds that each house is the judge of the qualification of its own members.

At the worst, let us grant that Messrs. Young and Mahoney, as school treasurers, were defaulters to the day they appeared at the bar of the House and asked to be sworn in, and the action of the majority would nevertheless stand out a hideous monstrosity in keeping them out of their seats. When and where had the House taken official cognizance of their ineligibility to justify a snap judgment on them? The unblushing effrontery of the member so-called from Madison parish, who objected to Young's taking the oath is not the least in this sad spectacle of partisan blindness setting both law and decency at defiance; for be it remembered, Madison parish, with its 2,500 Republican majority, was stolen under the noonday sun, transferred to the Democratic column and the "member from Madison" landed with this stolen vote into the House. Were the Democratic majority so slim as to call for this unparalleled outrage on the few Republicans whom the Democratic Committee saw fit to return, we might look at it with some leniency; but having complete possession of every branch of the government, this action simply demonstrates the good proof that there is something radically wrong which has driven us to such extremity. The easy, good-natured Negro would long before now have contented himself to live and die in this semi-tropical region, if the ruffianly cut-throats whom public sentiment is unable to frown down into nothingness have not systematically, since the inauguration of "home rule" made his very existence here a burden too grievous to be borne. We are satisfied that the better class of whites have always at heart deplored the wrongs which have driven us to desperation; but alas! they either have not the manliness to stamp lawlessness out of the State, or have trusted too much to the healing hand of time. We suggest that His Excellency address himself to an inflexible execution of the laws, especially in the case of the vagabonds who have made some parts of Louisiana a very hell for our people; let him see that every civil and political right is exercised with freedom, and thereby give our people in acts an honest and earnest determination of his government to wipe out the past, and we assure him, in time hence he will have no occasion to refer in an annual message race hatreds and their kindred woes. The kindly sentiments and suggestions for our people to be found in some parts of the message are commendable to Mr. Wiltz. We will watch his administration with something more than curious interest. We will treat his acts, not from the standpoint of a partisan, but with the impartiality which the common welfare of all classes demand.

Legislative Summary.

The two houses of the first General Assembly under the newly ratified constitution convened at the State House and were organized by their respective officers on Monday, the 12th inst. In the Senate, thirty of the thirty-six members answered to their names. In the House, all the members, except five, answered to their names. Representative Mahoney, of Plaquemine, was not sworn in on the allegation that as treasurer of the school board of his parish, he could be admitted only on the presentation of a receipt that he is not indebted to the parish. Representative Davidson, of Livingston, as the oldest member of the House, administered the oath of office. Hon. R. N. Ogden, of Orleans, was chosen Speaker by acclamation. Mr. Ogden acknowledged his election in a short speech in which he exhorted the members to be guided solely by a desire to discharge their whole duty. Gov. Nicholls transmitted a communication in which he disclaimed an unwillingness to send a formal message, leaving all further questions of policy to his successor. Tuesday, Mr. Young, of Concordia, was objected to being sworn in on the charge that he was indebted to the parish school treasury of his parish for $30,000.

Messrs. L. A. Wiltz and S. D. McNery respectively declared elected as Governor and Lieutenant Governor were duly inaugurated at Old Fellows Hall at 1 o'clock on Wednesday before a vast concourse of their party friends and admirers.

The message of the Governor was transmitted to both houses on Thursday. It deals in detail and exhaustively with matters of State interest.

To trot out Mr. Jno. McNery, as the Democrat has done, for the United States Senate, in anticipation of the ousting of Kellogg, is a trick too transparent to deceive any one but him whose conceit so wills it. If the Democrats of the Senate were as bold as half of Garcelon's body, Mr. McNery wouldn't stand the ghost of a show to be mentioned in connection with the Senate. In such a case, we fancy the candidate would not be much of a stranger to the sanctum of the Democrat. But as doubtful honors are cheap, Mr. McNery can afford to have his vanity flattered.

We rise up and stand respectfully with hat in hand to ask Senator Bruce when will that report of his on Freedman's Bank affairs be given to an expectant world?

We call attention to an advertisement in this issue of a "Lecture on the Black Race." We shall refer at large to it next week.

Collector Morris Marks has so far recovered that he is again at his post.

Personals.

—The People's Advocate has this to say of our junior editor, now at the national capital:

"J. D. Kennedy, the Apollo of the colored press, 'dropped in' upon us this week. Mr. Kennedy, our readers will call to mind, was the Republican candidate last month for Secretary of State in Louisiana, polling forty-four thousand votes. During the canvass Mr. Kennedy spoke in all parts of the State and was deservedly complimented both in the local and national journals, for the handsome manner in which he bore himself as one of the standard bearers of Stalwart Republicanism. Mr. Kennedy looks as spry as ever, and we doubt not that he will return to the Pelican State a happy, happy man."

—Miss Fannie M. Jackson, a colored lady of uncommon ability and rare scholarship, lectured lately in Washington to a slim house. Something wrong with the Washingtonians. We have always been under the impression that there was culture enough in that village to appreciate a person of Miss Jackson's attainments.

—J. P. Ball, Jr., of the Concordia Eagle, and clerk of court elect of Concordia parish, is in the city looking none the less "off" in size and handsome appearance for an arduous campaign.

—Senator A. F. Riard, of Lafayette, is the only Republican in the Senate belonging to the legal fraternity. He will be a member of the judiciary committee.

—Report has it that Hon. Frederick Douglass is about to venture once more on the uncertain sea of journalism. So may it be.

—R. S. Parnell, M. P., the Irish agitator, lately arrived from Europe, is addressing immense audiences in the East.

—Sheriff Woods and Mr. Fitzgerald, of Natchez, Miss., are in town on both business and pleasure.

She Was Jealous.

He has the misfortune to be colored, but that's not his fault; it's an easily accountable freak of nature. But he is just as much admired, and his company just as acceptable to young ladies of his persuasion of color as was ever Bear Brummel. His name might be Sam, but it isn't. He has been keeping almost exclusive company lately with a fair daughter of Ethiopia, whose name might be Bessie; but it isn't. And she—well, she was just dead in love with him—thought such a nice young man had never lived since Ham was an heir to all the world. But the clouds will rise on every life and dim the course of true love. This was her sad lot. Last Sunday morning she attended the African Methodist Episcopal Church, and there saw her faithful lover in company with a dashing "yaller" girl. What should she do? Faint? Not she. Pine away and die of a broken heart? Not for Sam. She did not receive much spiritual consolation from the religious exercises that holy day, for her eyes were watching him instead of the hymn book, and her thoughts, instead of running in the proper channel as to how she should love her enemies, were directed as to how she could have revenge on them. Service over, she stood outside the door, and as the audience passed out she scrutinized them till her eyes rested on Sam, and then she made a dive, striking him wildly on his nose, mouth, eyes, anywhere, scratching his face until he yelled lustily, and, breaking loose, fled precipitately down the street, leaving his blonde-complexioned lady to wend her way home alone. The last seen of Bessie she was talking excitedly to the crowd, while from her eyes flashed furtive gleams of satisfaction. And as we passed down the street there came, wafted on the breeze, the excited tones of the irate female: "I'll learn him to forsake his true love, and go wid yaller gals—yes, I will!"—Ex.

The Louisianian.

J. M. VANCE, Jr., Editor.

SATURDAY, JAN. 17, 1890.

On last Wednesday an immense throng of people witnessed the inaugural ceremonies at the Odd Fellows' Hall.

The weather has changed in the last two or three days and agreeably so at that. From the disagreeable sultry weather of the past few weeks, we are now enjoying a little touch of winter.

We had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Geo. E. Wallace from Texas, one of the largest colored planters in the South. Mr. Wallace speaks very encouragingly of the business outlook in his section. Himself and lady are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rosa Stewart.

The city has a most cheerful look. The insignia of His Majesty King Rex is streaming gaily in the breeze from high every house top, and everything betokens an unparalleled display on Mardi Gras. Be propitious, ye gods! and give us fair weather on the 10th proximo.

Our young friend Mr. J. P. Ball, Jr., newly elected clerk of court for the parish of Concordia, has been in the city for the past week, receiving from the Executive commissions for the recent elected officers of his section. Mr. Ball deserves credit for his successful canvass.

On yesterday Prof. A. P. Williams gave one of his pleasant, informal exhibitions at the Summer School, over which he is the principal, and we had the pleasure to be present, but owing to the necessity of our going to press on the day of the exhibition, we find ourselves unable to give a report of it, and will ask the indulgence of our many readers until next issue.

It is rumored that the young ladies of the American Circle propose to retaliate by giving a supper, time and place not yet decided upon, and exclude therefrom every shadow of the opposite gender. We are not a Doubting Thomas, but in this instance we do doubt. History never goes backwards, and repeats itself. Woman is only the "lesser man."

There is some talk of reorganizing the Mignonette Social Club, which flourished during the years of '75 and '76, to be composed in membership of both sexes. It is a splendid idea. Why don't some of our energetic young ladies take hold and complete arrangements—for instance Mrs. Boswell and others, who were such bright lights in the old organization? Between now and the Carnival, an initial hop could easily be given.

From a Radical stand-point, what is legitimate in Louisiana is decidedly illegitimate in Maine. But then, you know how it is yourselves, you bloody-shirted rogues—Alexandria Democrat.

From a Democratic stand-point, the counting out business as manipulated by Mad. Wells and Tom Anderson in Louisiana was an infamous crime; but the same sort of thing, when perpetrated by Garcelon and his fellow Returning-Boarders in Maine, becomes a patriotic public service that deserves a nation's applause. It makes a blamed sight of differences whose ox is gored, and you know it, you bald-headed, bulldozing, Bourbon blatherskites.—Donaldsonville Chief.

THE WEEKLY

ADVOCATING THE RIGHTS OF MEN, OUR AIM

Shall be to foster kindly relations between the races, and to establish a more mutual respect for each other as the very first essential to the future peace and prosperity of our State and the South.

We enter upon our eighth year pledged to the advocacy of the that has governed the LOUISIANIAN from the beginning.

The necessity of a closer intercourse between the two classes—the colored and white people of our State—we rejoice to know, is fast becoming manifest; and, the recent emancipation of our people from the domination of political task-masters renders this desideratum possible.

HARMONY AND MODERATION

among all classes and between all interests; kindness and forbearance fostered where unkindness and resentment reign, and a common service of ALL the people will elevate our loved State to an enviable and rightful position among her sisters in the development of her boundless resources and matchless advantages.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM,

The LOUISIANIAN offers rare advantages to the merchant and business man. Our large and weekly increasing circulation within the State, and throughout the country, renders the service of our columns particularly desirable.

EDUCATION.

A special feature of our paper will be its educational column, relating to matters affecting our common school system, the education of our youth, and enlightenment of the masses.

FINAL

With this statement of our purpose and laudable endeavor, we hope we shall receive, as we shall always strive to merit, commendation and support. Identify with every interest of our State, proud of its history and its advantages, we shall untiringly work in its behalf; counting no exertion too great or services too onerous to command and insure success.
